

Acknowledgments

It has been a great honor to work on these papers with our wonderful staff. The year 2020 has been a challenge to many, and the arrival of the epidemic has just been the icing on the cake. Nevertheless, even with all these hardships, the editorial staff have never lost sight of the goal, and all the people who have submitted their papers have been nothing but supportive. I am forever grateful and in awe of all the hard work that people have gone through to help with the publishing of this journal.

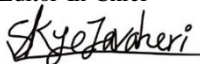

I would like to thank our editorial staff, Ronen Cherniavski, Louis Chiu, Kameron Lee, Vipusaayini Sivanesanathan, and Marcus MacKenzie for editing the papers, and showing love and enthusiasm for philosophy every step of the way. I also like to thank Thias Chopra and Alexandra Mursa for helping me in the process of this journal.

I would especially like to thank Samia Akhtar, Andrey Kazinich, Sara Masciotra-Milstein, Ketzia Rhule, Daniel Rodrigues and Negus Taylor for submitting their papers to the oracle, and I would like to thank J. L. Sterling for submitting the lovely poem, and Samia Akhtar again for her hauntingly beautiful artwork.

I would like to thank my family for everything they have done for me. Thank you, mom and dad, for taking a risk and immigrating to a new country, a difficult and risky gamble that I hope paid off. A special thanks to my little sister, Saghi Sophia, without which I would not be the person that I am now.

Last but not least, thanks to the Department of Philosophy and Vanier College at York University for not only helping us publish this journal but for giving the undergrad the opportunity to have a voice and share their thoughts with the world.

Sincerely
Skye S. Javaheri
